

Availability of High Speed Internet

The availability of Internet to a city's population is a good indicator of the ability of the city's population to receive and process useful information, and to be better prepared for the future.

Indicator Score = Yellow/Same

TREND ANALYSIS:

The City's residents have had access to Internet providers for a number of years, dating back to the mid 1980s. That level doesn't appear to be falling any time soon.

